History

In the fall of 1991, students taking the Oral History class as part of their work towards an MA in Public History worked on a new project, "The Chicago Public Schools During the Daley Era, 1945-1980" under the direction of Janet Nolan. The students created a list of potential interviewees featuring teachers, administrators, and staff employed at the Chicago Public Schools. They prepared a questionnaire, interviewed participants, and worked on transcriptions of the interviews. This project was to be part of a visual archive of Chicago in the postwar period, conceived by Professors Harold Platt of the History department and Jeffery Herder of the Communications department. Loyola oral history class students conducted additional interviews in 1993.

Scope and Content

The Chicago Public School Teachers Oral History Collection consist of 2.42 linear feet of records created in 1991 and 1993. The records include histories, memos, questionnaires, deed of gifts, word and subject lists, transcripts, and audiocassettes tapes.

Notes

Restriction: Box 3 is restricted. It contains unredacted documents with personal information and files and audiocassette tapes for interviews without any releases or deed of gift.
