Administrative History

In 1883 Chicago's first dental school opened its doors. It was originally called The Chicago Dental Infirmary but was soon restructured as The Chicago College of Dental Surgery. Affiliating first with Valparaiso University, it eventually affiliated with Loyola University Chicago and became the Loyola University School of Dentistry.

In 1942 Dr. Schoen accepted the appointment as editor of the Illinois Dental Journal. During his years in this position he became professor and chairman in the Department of Dental Materials at Loyola. He became the fifth Dean of Loyola University's School of Dentistry in December, 1956. Along with his many positions Dr. Schoen received numerous awards, such as the Charles N. Johnson Memorial Award.

The Deans of Loyola University of Chicago School of Dentistry are:

Truman W. Brophy	1883-1920
William H. G. Logan	1920-1945
Robert W. McNulty	1945-1950
