

LOYOLA UNIVERSITY CHICAGO
DEPARTMENT OF MODERN LANGUAGES & LITERATURES

NEW GERMAN STUDIES MINOR, FALL 2013!

The Department of Modern Languages and Literatures introduces the new interdisciplinary German Studies Minor. In addition to becoming conversant in German, students will be able to pursue a wider perspective on global issues, venture into the landscape of German society, and understand the foundation of German culture, history, and economics. Students can also study abroad in a German-speaking country. For course selections, please review the information below.

GERMAN LANGUAGE COURSES AT LOYOLA:

- German 101 and 102, beginning level
- German 103 and 104 (intermediate level—count towards minor)
- German 250 (new for Fall 2013) and German 251 (low advanced level—count towards minor)

NEW FOR FALL 2013
GERMAN 250

COURSE SEQUENCE FOR THE MINOR:

- Four language courses beginning at German 103
- Two courses involving German cultural studies taught in English. Choose from History, Philosophy, Theology, and other disciplines
- Capstone paper, 1 credit hour, advised by the program's director
- German Studies minor consists of 19 credit hours total.

Students with prior knowledge of German may take the placement exam at LUC.edu/llrc.

QUESTIONS AND ADVISING?

For advising, to declare the German Studies Minor, or to discuss study abroad options, please contact David Pankratz at dpankra@luc.edu.

(W) LUC.edu/germanstudies/
(E) germanstudies@luc.edu

